

The Nashua Riverwalk is not a new concept. The citizens and their leaders have envisioned downtown riverfront walkways for over 20 years, as is noted in the 1983 and 1991 downtown master plans. The public access easement behind Clocktower Place was deeded to the City in 1989, the Heritage Trail behind the library was completed in 1994, and other sections have been completed in the 1990s. The boardwalk next to Peddler's Daughter was completed in 2006. And the City continues to pursue opportunities to implement the City's vision.

Nashua Riverwalk

The Downtown Master Plan, a vision by Nashua citizens for the future of downtown, was adopted by the City in 2003. Consistent with previous Downtown Master Plans, it articulates a strong emphasis on the Nashua River's role in the continued vitality and viability of downtown. The Nashua Riverwalk will connect the riverfront to create a special place where people can congregate and play ... a place that adds to the activity and dynamism of downtown ...
a place that drives private investment ...
a place that brings pride to the community.
